

Axelspace Selected for Government-Led IP Acceleration Program

The Japan Patent Office, a body of the Japanese Ministry of Economy, Trade and Industry, has selected Axelspace Corporation as one of the ten members of its new IP (Intellectual Property) Acceleration program for Startups (IPAS).

The purpose of the IPAS program is to help Japanese start-ups develop appropriate intellectual property strategies to protect their original technologies and ideas, grow, collaborate with larger firms and expand their influence around the world. The program will consist in mentoring activity from teams of experts in IP and several other fields. For more details about the program please visit.
